

Bobby Sherman (upper left, 1970) and Hall & Oates (upper right, 1983) both recorded Beal & Boothe's "Jingle Bell Rock," which appeared on the Chipmunks' 1963 holiday set (lower left). The belium-voiced animated critters were the brainchild of Ross Bagdasarian, AKA David Seville, and to this day their "Chipmunk Song" holds the unique honor of being the only number one Christmas record in rock history. That nugget was released as a single in 1958, and subsequently included on "Let's All Sing With The Chipmunks," their first Christmas LP (lower right).
